Being named the best means the world to Lynette La Mere and the Pure Joy Catering team. "Catering is our life," she said. "We love it, and this year has really shown us who we are and how important what we do is to the lives of our clients and to us. We are outstanding at our craft, and that is satisfying and rewarding. Getting these accolades makes our life's work more valuable. We miss you, and we will see you very soon!"

"The pandemic has really hit the wedding industry hard, so with that part of our business diminished, we have tried to maintain relationships with fellow wedding industry professionals, doing styled shoots and keeping our creative juices flowing until we can all have a big party when this is over," said proprietor Gillian Muralles. "We are so grateful that State Street has been closed to cars. It has helped our business tremendously, and we hope the State Street Promenade becomes a permanent fixture."

"We are honored to be recognized for our commitment to top-quality products, first-class service, and going the extra mile to help with our clients' special events," said owner John Murray. "The event industry as a whole has been greatly affected by COVID-19, with proms canceled, weddings postponed or vastly scaled back, and fundraisers nonexistent. Our business depends on referrals and reviews, and what is better than the kindness of Indy readers?"
